A little preparation.

Check entry requirements

Confirm requirements for your passport, route and stay with the official authorities before buying non-refundable travel. Hong Kong and Macao have separate entry arrangements.

Official reference

Keep the arrival details offline

Save your accommodation address in Chinese, reservation confirmations, first transfer, insurance details and emergency contacts. Carry more than one way to pay.

Official reference

Think door to door

Check the exact station and airport on each ticket. Leave time for local transfers, security, check-in and rest. A train journey is only one part of a travel day.

Official reference

Travel thoughtfully

Ask before photographing people. Follow local guidance at temples and museums. For food allergies, carry a carefully translated explanation and confirm ingredients directly.

This reference is an editorial planning draft. Opening hours, prices, transport schedules and reservations require current verification. Read linked sources before committing to bookings.

Beijing

北京

Beijing / North

Imperial stories, lived one hutong at a time.

Beijing rewards a neighbourhood-by-neighbourhood approach. Imperial courtyards occupy enormous blocks; the quieter pleasures are in hutong lanes, lakeside paths and breakfast shops between them. Keep the Great Wall on a separate day and resist crossing the city for every meal.

01 / CITY & LOCAL AREA

Forbidden City

Give the palace a full morning and leave time for the galleries, not just the central axis.

02 / CITY & LOCAL AREA

Temple of Heaven

Walk through the park before exploring the ceremonial architecture.

03 / DEDICATED OUTING

Mutianyu Great Wall

Make this a separate day trip, with transport back to the city arranged in advance.

04 / CITY & LOCAL AREA
Summer Palace

Lakeside paths, painted corridors and palace gardens northwest of the centre. Give this an unhurried half-day; the grounds involve substantial walking.

05 / CITY & LOCAL AREA
Jingshan Park

Climb the central hill for a view over the Forbidden City roofs. A useful short stop after the palace, with steps to the viewpoint.

06 / CITY & LOCAL AREA
Beihai Park

A lake, white stupa and garden pavilions west of Jingshan. Choose it for a gentler park afternoon rather than another museum.

07 / CITY & LOCAL AREA
Shichahai hutongs

Explore the lanes behind the lakes, then pause for tea. These remain residential streets: keep doorways clear and ask before photographing people.

798 Art District

Former industrial buildings now house galleries and design shops. Browse a few exhibitions rather than expecting one single-ticket attraction.

BEIJING

At the table. Where to stay.

WHAT TO EAT

Peking duck

Order roast duck with pancakes, scallions and sauce; a shared meal makes more sense than a quick solo snack.

WHAT TO EAT

Zhajiangmian

Wheat noodles with savoury bean sauce and vegetable toppings. A practical lunch between sights; meat is common in the sauce.

WHAT TO EAT

Beijing breakfast

Try sesame flatbreads or jianbing from a busy breakfast shop. Huguosi is a useful area to explore traditional snacks.

YOUR BASE

Wangfujing / Dongsi

Convenient for a first visit and eastern old-city sights; choose a hotel near a metro entrance rather than judging only distance on a map.

YOUR BASE

Gulou / Shichahai

Atmospheric lanes and evening walks, but some courtyard stays have difficult vehicle access and less soundproofing.

BEIJING

The practical chapter.

TRANSPORT

Arriving

Check whether your flight uses Capital or Daxing airport. Railway departures may use Beijing South, West, Chaoyang or another station: save the exact Chinese station name.

TRANSPORT

Getting around

The metro is useful for long hops; explore one hutong district on foot. Large roads and security queues make short map distances misleading.

TRANSPORT

Beyond the centre

Mutianyu, Badaling and the Ming Tombs are outside central Beijing. Choose one main excursion and confirm the return transfer before departure.

TIME WELL SPENT

Old-city day

Build around a confirmed Forbidden City reservation, followed by Jingshan. Leave the late afternoon free for nearby lanes rather than adding the Summer Palace.

TIME WELL SPENT

Extra days

Give the Temple of Heaven and a neighbourhood meal one day; the Summer Palace another half-day; reserve a separate day for your chosen Great Wall section.

Shanghai

上海

Shanghai / East

Old lanes, new horizons, and one remarkable river.

Shanghai is best read at street level before you look down from a tower. Move between the riverfront, tree-lined former concession streets and small local eating places. Pudong and the old city show very different faces; neither needs to be squeezed into a single skyline photograph.

Yu Garden

A classical garden in the old city, surrounded by a busy bazaar. Separate time inside the garden from shopping and snacks outside.

05 / CITY & LOCAL AREA

Shanghai Tower

An elevated view over Pudong and the Huangpu River. Choose a clear day; poor visibility can make a tower visit less rewarding.

An active Buddhist temple with sculptural and architectural interest. Keep voices low and follow photography instructions inside halls.

A riverside walk linking industrial heritage and newer cultural spaces. Pick a short section near your accommodation rather than attempting the whole waterfront.

08 / DEDICATED OUTING

Zhujiajiao

A water-town day trip with canals, bridges and narrow lanes. Leave time for the onward transfer from the metro and a relaxed return.

SHANGHAI

WHAT TO EAT

Xiaolongbao

Small steamed buns holding hot soup, usually pork-based. Let them cool and take a small bite before drinking the broth.

WHAT TO EAT

Shengjianbao

Pan-fried buns with crisp bases and juicy fillings. A filling breakfast or inexpensive lunch rather than a delicate dessert.

WHAT TO EAT

Benbang dishes

Shanghai home-style cooking often uses soy sauce and a little sweetness. Try red-braised pork with vegetables and rice as a shared meal.

YOUR BASE

People's Square / Jing'an

Central metro connections and a wide hotel range. Check whether the room faces a busy road.

YOUR BASE

Xuhui / former concession streets

Good for cafes and walking between meals; allow extra travel time for Pudong airport and attractions across the river.

SHANGHAI

The practical chapter.

TRANSPORT

Arriving

Pudong and Hongqiao are different airports. Hongqiao railway station connects with the airport complex, but terminal transfers still take time.

TRANSPORT

Getting around

Use the metro for cross-city travel and walk within individual neighbourhoods. A ferry can add a river-level perspective when its route suits your plans.

TRANSPORT

Beyond the centre

Zhujiajiao needs its own half-day or longer. Suzhou and Hangzhou work better as deliberately planned rail excursions than last-minute additions.

TIME WELL SPENT

Two contrasting days

Walk the Bund and old city on one day. On another, combine the former concession streets with a museum or gallery chosen for your interests.

TIME WELL SPENT

An extra day

Choose either a Pudong skyline visit in clear weather or a slower Zhujiajiao excursion. Do not plan both around a tightly timed airport departure.

Guilin

桂林

Guangxi / South

Let the river set the pace.

Think of this region as several bases rather than one city. Guilin has urban lakes and caves; Yangshuo has countryside lanes; Xingping has river scenery; Longji is a separate mountain excursion. Where you sleep changes how much of each day you spend in a vehicle.

05 / CITY & LOCAL AREA

Reed Flute Cave

An illuminated limestone cave near Guilin. A useful weather alternative, with artificial lighting rather than an untouched cave expedition.

06 / CITY & LOCAL AREA

A full-day trip or overnight stay from Guilin. Choose a village base and walking route before arranging transport; terraces change with the agricultural season.

08 / CITY & LOCAL AREA

Daxu Ancient Town

Old trading streets beside the Li River outside the centre. Combine a gentle lane walk with riverside time rather than treating it as a major hiking day.

GUILIN

At the table. Where to stay.

WHAT TO EAT

Guilin rice noodles

A breakfast staple with rice noodles, savoury toppings and pickles. Ask about meat and chilli before mixing everything together.

WHAT TO EAT

Yangshuo beer fish

Fish cooked in a beer-based sauce, commonly shared. Confirm fish size and the total price before ordering.

WHAT TO EAT

Oil tea

A savoury tea-based preparation associated with local communities. Try it alongside snacks; it is quite different from a pot of plain tea.

YOUR BASE

Central Guilin lakes

Practical for an arrival night, urban sightseeing and onward travel; it does not put you in the Yangshuo countryside.

YOUR BASE

Yangshuo / Yulong River

Town offers more dining choices; countryside stays offer quieter scenery but require planned transfers after dinner.

GUILIN

The practical chapter.

TRANSPORT

Arriving

Check whether your ticket says Guilin, Guilin North or Guilin West. Yangshuo railway station is near Xingping, not beside Yangshuo town.

TRANSPORT

Getting around

Use walking for the central lakes and vehicles for separated sights. Around Yangshuo, choose short cycling routes suited to your experience and the road conditions.

TRANSPORT

Beyond the centre

Longji and Yangshuo lie in different directions from Guilin. River activities depend on weather and water conditions; keep an alternative land-based day.

TIME WELL SPENT

A regional introduction

Use an arrival afternoon for Guilin lakes. Move toward Yangshuo for a countryside day and choose one Li River experience rather than repeating similar cruises.

TIME WELL SPENT

With more time

Add Xingping at an unhurried pace, or spend a night at Longji. Avoid adding the terraces between two tightly scheduled transport connections.
